BURGLARS AT DALLAS.

They Crack a Safe at Hatfield's Store Sunday Morning.

Wilkes-Barre, June 7 .- Burglars of the safe-cracking species operated in Dallas yesterday morning. At 2 a. m. they entered the large general store of Harry Hatfield, and blew open the safe by exploding dynamite, first drilling a hole in the top of the safe. The door was blown completely across the store and other parts of the safe were scattered promiscuously about the store. In order to deaden the noise of the report two large sacks of salt were placed on the safe. The burglars secured $15 in cash and a lot of valuable notes and papers. They also pried open the money drawer under the counter, which contained about $1 in small change Strange to say, however, they did not touch the contents of the drawer. After they had finished their nefarious work in the store the burglars chartered (without the company's permission) a Lehigh Valley hand truck. on which they rode to a point below the Ice Cave hotel. There they threw the truck over the embankment, and proceeded, it is believed, toward this city. Some are of the opinion that these are

THE LAMP EXPLODED.

Serious Fire in a Pittston Meat Market Early Monday Morning.

Pittston, June 7.—The two-story frame building on South Main street, owned by William Wilson, sr., and occupied as a butcher shop and residence by his son Will, was almost totally de stroyed by fire at 3 o'clock this morn

The younger Mr. Wilson was up at the time and was walking with a lighted lamp in his hand, into the storeroom to see what time it was, when the lamp slipped from his hand to the floor and exploded. Some clothing which hung close by, caught fire, and in a few moments the blaze was beyond control.

Mr. Wilson's first efforts were di rected toward getting the family but ried out, while the others were com pelled to hurry out with scanty clothing. By the time the family escaped. the whole interior of the building war ablaze, and not a single thing could e saved.

The firemen were on hand promptly and had little difficulty in confining the flames to the building in which they started.

WOMAN IN THE CASE.

Duryea Gallant Stabbed by His Rival While Escorting the Young Lady Home from a Christening.

Pittston, June 7 .- Says the Gazette: After a season of comparative quietness in news circles Duryea, as usual, opened the week with an addition to her already long list of crimes, with a stabbing affray which, in all probability, will result fatally to at least one of the victims.

The christening of an innocent little infant brought about the tragedy. The P. M. Boyle. christening took place at the home of Joe Miledsky, at the corner of Donnelly and Stevenson streets, Sunday Miledsky also conducts a saloon at this place. Numerous friends of both sexes were in attendance and considerable fire water was consumed. This of the tragedy. Certain it is that one Simon Wilkalis, who now languishes in the Luzerne county jail, apparently objected to Peter Dapken escorting a lady commit the terrible deed which followed.

THE STABBING.

Everything went on harmoniously until about 11 o'clock when the lady above mentioned started for home in company with Dapken. The latter, who boards with the saloon keeper, and who is a fine looking and well-built fellow, was on his way home when, he says, his assailant met him in the road in front of the saloon and, without a word of warning, drew an ugly weapon and stabbed him. The knife entered the right side and penetrated the lungs. Dapken uttered a piercing shriek of pain and sank to the ground. The cry brought the large number of inmates of the house to the scene and a free fight ensued, extending into the saloon. In the fracas Frank Watzsewitz, one of the guests, was badly injured by being stabbed in several places. The keen edge of the knife almost severed the left arm, while his face and shoulder are horribly mutilated. His injuries, though serious, are not necessarily fatal.

Dapken's injuries will probably prove fatal. After being struck he was carried into the house and Dr. Burlington summoned. When the injured man was seen by a reporter, although able to talk, he was in a sinking condition. He could not give any reason for the foul attack and said he had never had any trouble with Wilkalis. cald he had accompanied the woman to her home merely for a walk and was not aware that his would-be murderer had more than a passing acquaintance with the lady. The doctor was of the opinion that the man would

CAPTURED.

Immediately after committing the act, Wilkalis made his escape. At 6 o'clock this morning Constable Rittle went to the fellow's boarding house on the back road. Apparently Wilkalis had not retired during the night for, he was watching for the appearance of the officers. As the constable entered the back door Wilkalis hurried out of the front door and made with all haste to the woods. Here he hid himself. The constable with three assistants, scoured the woods for several hours in a fruitless effort to find their man, which was not accomplished until 9 o'clock. He, with two other principals in the affair-William Stankosky and Mathias Lurowsky-were taken before 'Squire Motiska and given a Wilkalis was committed to await the result of his victim's injuries and the other two were each held
